

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of packaging a lithium ion battery using compound folding to seal the battery and thereby provide a more compact design that also reduces vibration caused by mechanical shocks is provided. A compound fold is made along the edge of the battery packaging to seal a cell therein. The compound fold extends generally from a centerline of the cell between a top and bottom surface of the cell. Different shapes of compound folds may be provided.